

Herbert Ludl (Ed.)

INTEGRATION IN HOUSING

MODELS FOR
SOCIAL COHESION

Housing Estates as Places for Integration

How much “foreignness” can a neighbourhood take? This is one of the central questions in residential construction in the context of access for migrants to subsidised housing.

In 2000 a limited-profit housing association in Vienna attempted the creation of an interethnic housing model. The quality of the architecture and a socially competent caretaker service were identified as starting points for fundamental integrative measures. As shown by an evaluation in 2003, the attempt was successful.

This book presents a new analysis of this housing model from 2016 as well as a comprehensive study by Joachim Brech and Heidrun Feigelfeld of life together on housing estates built since 2000. Contributions by Herbert Ludl (Ed.) and Walter Weiland expand upon the theme.

INTEGRATION IN HOUSING

MODELS FOR
SOCIAL COHESION

Overview of Contents

Herbert Ludl

SUPPORTING INTEGRATIVE PROCESSES

The place of residence as an important social environment

Joachim Brech/Heidrun Feigelfeld

THE CURRENT RELEVANCE OF AN INITIAL PROJECT

Integration in the inter-ethnic neighbourhood housing model

Joachim Brech/Heidrun Feigelfeld

LIVING TOGETHER IN HOUSING ESTATES

Empirical survey of new Sozialbau housing estates in Vienna

Walter Weiland

SOLUTIONS FOR NEIGHBOURHOOD CONFLICTS

Mediative elements as prevention and mediation as an alternative

Joachim Brech/Heidrun Feigelfeld

THE GENERAL FRAMEWORK AS A KEY THEME

Conclusions and perspectives

Available (free of charge)

E-Version / PDF Download:

<http://www.sozialbau.at/home/aktuelles/aktuelle-meldungen/>

Printed Version by order to:

kommunikation@sozialbau.at

144 pages / several diagrams

ISBN 978-3-200-053 86-1

